GENERAL WOOD AND PARTY EN ROUTE TO PHILLIPINES

Bitter Anti-American Feeling Exists as a Result of Correspondence

FOREIGN OFFICE SILENT

Japanese Press Unanimous in Denouncing the Note From America

By DUKE PARRY
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

TOKIO, April 20.—When General Leonard Wood and his party en route to the Philippines reach Yokohama tomorrow, on the liner Wenatchee, they will find a more bitter anti-American feeling existing as a result of publication of the Yap diplomatic correspondence than followed the adoption last November by California of the Japanese exclusion act.

Official silence continues at the foreign office. However, one authority who refused to allow the use of his name, said:

"America, knowing herself in the wrong, is using Europe's debts to her as a means of forcing cooperation against Japan in the Yap situation. Japan may surprise the world and throw her utmost strength here."

Former General Sato, author of the book, "If America and Japan Fight," is conducting an active campaign from the lecture platform against disarmament propaganda which is being actively carried on by Yuzic Ozaki.

"It is my intention to oppose any disarmament here," General Sato declared in an interview today. "America's aggressive attitude, is directly provocative of my speeches."

The Japanese press, unanimous in denouncing the American note, today took an aspect of utmost bitterness in discussing the situation.

"Neither Great Britain, nor France is able to denounce the attempt of the United States through President Harding to assert the theory that 'might makes right.' It now behooves the people of Japan to make a great determination," says the Yorozu.

In the same vein the Niroku says:

"It would be the height of folly for Japan to rely upon weak-kneed Great Britain and France. The Yap issue must be settled through direct negotiations with the United States. Japan does not necessarily like war but she must use her ability against persecution when her cause is righteous."

GEORGES CARPENTIER APPEARS FATIGUED

(By International News Service)

PARIS, April 20.—Supporters of Georges Carpentier are alarmed over his appearance since he returned from a tour of Algeria and Spain.

The French champion is unusually pale, his eyes are lustreless and he is under weight and seems fatigued. His friends explain that sudden changes of climate and diet have been responsible for his condition and predict that he will regain his normal form when he starts training for Jack Dempsey.

BUILD LARGE NEW DOCK AT VERA CRUZ

(By International News Service)

MEXICO CITY, April 20.—Work on a great new dock at Vera Cruz to take care of the growing maritime traffic of the port will be commenced at once. The new pier, which will be 385 yards long and 110 yards wide, will cost 2,780,000 pesos. The secretary of commerce has already approved the plans of the Mexican company that will carry out the construction.

INTERCHANGE OF MILITARY PUPILS

(By International News Service)

MEXICO CITY, April 20.—Colonel Romanoff, representing White Russia, arrived here today and conferred with Foreign Minister Alberto Pana for the purpose of establishing commercial relations and interchange of military pupils. He will be received by President Obregon tomorrow. He asserts the Japanese government already has entered into a similar agreement with White Russia. Romanoff held the rank of field marshal in the old Russian army during the war.

CHEMICAL ANALYSIS ASCERTAIN CAUSE OF DEATH

Exhume Body of Daughter of William W. Vance of Glencoe, Ill.

INQUIRY TO PROCEED

Bought "Honeymoon Bungalow"—Came to Los Angeles in March, 1920

(By International News Service)

CHICAGO, April 20. — Coroner's chemists today were making a chemical analysis to determine the cause of the death of Miss Marie Vance whose body was exhumed yesterday at the request of her father, William W. Vance, a wealthy dentist of Glencoe, Ill. Miss Vance died in Los Angeles, April 5, and her body was brought here for burial. Diphtheria was certified as the cause of her death by Los Angeles physicians.

According to Vance, his daughter went to Los Angeles in March, 1920 to visit Mrs. Burt Emery, a relative. En route she met Robert S. Lockhart a retired merchant of Covington, Va. They fell in love and planned to be married.

Lockhart, it is said, purchased a "honeymoon bungalow" at Los Angeles and brought his three daughters from Virginia. Miss Vance, Lockhart and his daughters lived in the bungalow.

Miss Vance became ill a month ago, her father said an operation was performed. She died on April 5, Vance declared that Lockhart left Los Angeles about this time. When the body of Miss Vance arrived here the family were not allowed to view it and funeral services were prohibited by the health department.

After requesting Coroner Peter Hoffman to exhume the body of his daughter and make an investigation Vance declared he had been misinformed regarding the facts in the case and that he desired no investigation. The coroner, however, is proceeding with his inquiry.

TELLS HOW TO READ PEOPLE ON SIGHT

Homer M. Baker is beginning a course of seven lessons on character reading this evening at 7:30, at the Glendale Commercial school, 224 South Brand boulevard.

Tickets for the course—there are no single admissions—are on sale at Spohr's and Roberts and Echol's drug store and also at the commercial school. Lessons will be given tonight, April 20, and on the evenings of April 23, 27, 30, May 4, 7 and 11.

Mr. Baker claims for these lessons that they will enable one to know the chief characteristics of every person one meets, which gives one an enormous advantage in every experience of life.

AMERICAN WOMEN OUTDONE IN PARIS

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON, April 20.—American women of fashion, leaders of the world as lavish spenders for personal adornment, have surpassed their pre-war record as heavy buyers of Paris gowns and millinery.

Their purchases at French shops reached the unprecedented total of $10,261,000 last year. This figure represents money spent for gowns and millinery, imported to the United States from France.

Consul Thackery reported to the Commerce Department that the amount spent in 1920 exceeded by more than $6,000,000,000 the figure shown for the preceding year.

Milady's demand for diamonds also caused a big jump in the imports of "sparklers" from France. Diamonds imported from France amounted to $4,692,000, as compared with $2,149,000 the preceding year.

Reports for the first month of this year reveal that a continued heavy demand is in evidence for the output of the French designers of wearing apparel.

Glendalians Enthuse Over the Wonderful Tabernacle Meetings

John Brown, evangelist, who motored from Hanford to Glendale yesterday, expressed himself as delighted to meet old friends whose acquaintance he had made here six years ago, and he looked as if he meant it.

He was introduced by Dr. C. M. Crist at last night's meeting, and announced as his text: I Kings, 19-4, "But he himself went a day's journey into the wilderness and came to sit down under a juniper tree and requested for himself that he might die, and said, 'It is enough. Now, O Lord, take away my life for I am not better than my father.'"

Rev. Brown depicted the despondency of Elijah, who, though he was a man that walked with God, a man who had just performed two miracles, nevertheless succumbed to discouragement. The speaker showed how human an experience this is in our own day, even as in the days of Elijah, and how incompatible with faithful service of God or our fellowman is pessimism and discouragement; what a lack of faith in God and what an egotistic dependence on our own frail might is indicated by worry and fits of the blues.

Glendale needs the influence of optimistic men and women. Not of our own power, but with God's help we can stay out from under the juniper tree and radiate optimism. Courage is contagious. Brave thoughts, brave words, brave deeds are makers and formers of men and lift them up to the heights of noble character and deeds of love and high emprise.

"JACK" CUDAHY, MILLIONAIRE SPORT, SUICIDES AT HOLLYWOOD HOME

Left No Note Nor Gave Any Indications Prior to His Act That He Was Despondent—Blew Top of His Head Off—Mrs. Cudahy in House at Time

LOS ANGELES, April 20.—John P. "Jack" Cudahy, millionaire sportsman, a mmber of the nationally known Cudahy family, committed suicide at his home in Hollywood boulevard here today, by shooting himself through the head.

Cudahy went to his bedroom on the second floor of his palatial residence seated himself in a chair and blew the top of his head off with a shot gun.

The millionaire left no note nor did he give any indications prior to his act that he was despondent.

Mrs. Cudahy, her children and some of the servants were in the house at the time. Hearing the shot Mrs. Cudahy rushed to the bedroom and found her husband's body. She collapsed immediately after and was placed under the care of a physician. Her children remained with her.

WOMEN'S ANNUAL GOLF TOURNAMENT

Contests Are Exciting and Well Played by All Participants

By WILLIAM L. MALLABAR
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

LONDON, April 20.—The second day's play in the annual women's open golf tournament at Ranelagh began today with Miss Alexia Stirling, Miss Dorothy Chambers, Miss Cecil Leitch, Miss Elsie Grant Suttis, Mrs. Temple Doball and Mrs. Heming Johnson, all starting from scratch.

Miss Stirling was paired with Miss Chambers, Miss Leitch with Mrs. Doball and Miss Suttis with Mrs. Johnson.

Miss Leitch started well, as she was the first to tee off, and went out in 34, which is bogie for the course. Mrs. Dobell went out in 31.

On the last nine holes Miss Leitch turned in a card of 36 for a total of 143 for the two days' play. Mrs. Doball played a 39. Miss Joan Stecker returned a remarkable 69 for the day's play, giving her a total of 143.

Miss Stirling went out in 37. Her driving was weaker and she was unable to control the height of her shots. Her play was featured by marvelous putting, however. She made the fourth hole in three, holing out with a 21-foot putt.

FRENCHMAN VICTIM OF "SPANISH" SWINDLE

(By International News Service)

PARIS, April 19.—The old "Spanish" swindle, worked for many years in the United States, has just claimed a victim in Paris.

A wealthy Paris manufacturer received a letter from the "Spanish prisoner" telling the same old story. The "prisoner" had buried a treasure worth $100,000 and if the manufacturer would only come to Spain and see a friend of the jail bird the money would be delivered to him on the payment of a comparatively small sum.

The Parisian went to Madrid and met the friend of the "prisoner." The friend obtained $5000 from him, giving a bogus check for $15,000 as security. It was not until he had returned to Paris that the manufacturer discovered he had been duped.

TENTH CENTURY TOMBS DISCOVERED

(By International News Service)

LONDON, April 20.—Previous excavations at St. Augustine's College, Canterbury, resulted in the discovery of the tombs of the archbishops of the tenth century. Thus a further important link with the past has been established.

It is a tomb, hitherto undisturbed containing the remains of Abbot Roger II, or Roger of Chichester, who, according to contemporary historians, was elected abbot in 1252, died 20 years later and was buried beneath the altar of St. Katherine.

Beneath a large sheet of lead was disclosed a grave, also lined with lead, containing the skeleton, which was that of a man of tall and powerful stature. Remnants of his official robes remained.

Upon a finger of the right hand was a ring of copper gilt, while by the side lay the remains of his pastoral staff. Resting upon the breast was a leaden plate bearing the following inscription:

X Hic: Reqviesit: DMC: Rogervs: Secvds: Qvondam: Abbast: Hvivs: Loci Qvi Obbitt: Anno: Incarnacionis: Dominice: M: Co: LXXII: Idvs: Decemb.

The ring, the remnants of the robes and the plate have been placed with previous discoveries in the college museum.

Upon the site of these excavations had been erected a mortuary and laundry belonging to a local hospital, but these buildings have lately been acquired and the mortuary removed. It is expected that under the site of the laundry, which has yet to be demolished, the tombs of King Ethelbert and Queen Bertha will be found.

GERMAN MENUS MUST SHOW PRICE IS EDICT

(By International News Service)

BERLIN, April 20.—The English on the Rhine "have got to be shown." Prompted by complaints by the Birtish that they are being gouged, the interallied Rhineland Commission has issued orders that throughout the British occupied area wine cards in all cafes and restaurants priced printed in the English language. Prices with and without tax must be given, it is ruled. The same is ordered for tickets to theaters and other places of entertainment.

COTTON GROWERS HAVE POWERFUL SELLING AGENCY

Cooperative Organization Will Dominate the World's Cotton Trade

BRANCHES IN 10 STATES

National Selling Agency Will Be Conducted by Board of Trustees

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., April 20.—A powerful, national selling agency for the American cotton growers' exchange, which will be known as the American Cotton Growers' Exchange, a cooperative organization, will dominate the world's cotton trade, under plans formulated and tentatively adopted by cotton growers' representatives from ten states, in convention here today.

The organization, with branches in ten large cotton producing states, has laid plans to be the largest and most important single business enterprise in the world. The organization is to start business at once.

The conference of cotton growers, who have seen their product drop 75 per cent in value in less than a year, was called by Carl Williams, chairman of the executive committee of the Oklahoma cotton growers' cooperative organization, which has just completed its organization by signing up 400,000 bales of the Oklahoma cotton crop, under a binding contract with growers to deliver their production to the association for the next seven years. The Oklahoma association already has set about arranging for sale of the 1921 crop under a contract drawn by Aaron Sapiro, California attorney and cooperative marketing expert. Sapiro helped organize the California fruit growers into cooperating marketers.

The Sapiro plan provides for a national selling agency to be conducted by a board of trustees, consisting of one trustee from every member association, with an additional trustee for every 250,000 bales of cotton or major fraction thereof in the member association's control.

MEN OF MATURE AGE ARE PREFERRED

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON, April 20.—"Whether it is suffrage or some other influence, it is a fact that the marriageable young woman of today prefers to pick her future husband from among men of maturer age," according to Captain Kroll, the capitol's marriage license clerk.

"The psychology of the girl who contemplates marriage has experienced a decided change during the last two years," observed Cupid's official intermediary, who insisted that a girl these days has an eye to a safe future with comfort with a husband with good sense, even though older than herself, rather than a "life full of romantic uncertainty with a handsome youngster who may change his mind over night and get a divorce the next morning."

Captain Kroll was not prepared to say whether this rather startling development in matrimonial contemplations would be lasting or whether the principle of "like likes like" would again gain the upper hand. "It may be that the girls desire more independence and it may be they think an older man can guarantee such a state with more facility than a young husband just starting out in life. Young husbands as a rule are also jealous and wish to dominate over their brides, while men with more experience are more tolerant."

KANSAS HAS PARALLEL OF CLARA HAMON CASE

(By International News Service)

ARKANSAS CITY, Kan., April 20.—Kansas has had a murder triangle that runs a startling parallel with the Clara Smith Hamon case.

Mrs. Luella Moncravie received a four-year sentence for murdering her husband, Henry E. Moncravie, rich Osage Indian, at the same time that Clara Hamon was acquitted. She was pardoned, however, after serving two weeks of the sentence.

The parallel included statements by both men victims that they had shot themselves confessions from both women that they had done the shooting and protestations by both women that the shooting had occurred when the men had attacked them while drunk.

REVISION VERSAILLES TREATY AS ALONG WILSON'S LINES

Manifesto Charges the Treaty Was Dictated by Factors of World War

CARRY OUT REVISION

Urges Abrogation of "Ruinous and Unworkable Indemnities"

By EARLE C. REEVES
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

LONDON, April 20.—A manifesto signed by many notable Europeans including J. K. Jerome, Leon Longuet, Ramsay MacDonald, Professor Michelet, Lord Parmoor, Sir George Paish, George Bernard Shaw, Robert Smillie, Philip Snowden and Israel Zangwill, made public today, demands a revision of the Versailles treaty along the lines of ex-President Wilson's 14 points.

The manifesto charges that the treaty was dictated by the factors of the world war, that it failed to secure frank and public diplomacy, and that it has done nothing to prevent the drift of Central Europe into famine and revolution. It declares that a revision should be carried out by all nations irrespective of the parts they played in the war.

The document urges the abrogation of "ruinous and unworkable indemnities, reduction of armaments, immediate publication of all treaties, honest application of self-determination, extension of adequate credits to the countries ruined by the war, immediate admission of all applicants to the league of nations and adequate supervision by the league of mandated territories."

INDEMNITY OF 40 BILLION DOLLARS

(By International News Service)

LONDON, April 20.—An indemnity of forty billion dollars was the "penalty" which the kaiser proposed to impose upon the United States if Germany had won the war in 1917. It was included in his "peace terms" written by himself in the spring of that year, and just discovered in the archives of the German foreign office, according to the Berlin correspondent of the Manchester Guardian. The other peace conditions of the kaiser were:

Germany was to get the French coal fields of Longivy and Brie.

Germany was to get the Belgian coast.

Germany was to get Courland and Lithuania.

Germany was to get the Azores.

Germany was to get the island of Malata.

Incidentally, Prince Joachim, one of the kaiser's sons, who has since committed suicide, was to be made king of Roumania.

ALHAMBRA, 6; GLENDALE, 5

At the opening of the seventh and last inning of the game between Glendale and Alhambra, yesterday afternoon, Glendale had not made a run while Alhambra's tally was 6. But a batting rally was started and before the third man was out, 5 runs had been tallied. Dale Wood pitched the entire game for Glendale.

By the term "corona" is meant the small colored circles frequently seen around the sun or moon.

THREE MANAGERS AFTER PENNANT

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK, April 20.—The International League opened its season with games at Jersey City, Newark, Reading and Baltimore. Three new managers will strive to lift the pennant. They are George Stallings of Rochester, Larry Doyle at Toronto and Patsy Donovan at Jersey City.

TUESDAY CLUB WINS HONOR AT POMONA

Scenes From Shakespearean Plays Put On by Talented Members Make Hit

Ladies who attended the Tuesday sessions of the district convention of Women's Clubs now in session at Pomona, report that the scenes from Shakespearean plays put on by members of the Shakespeare section of the Tuesday Afternoon Club of this city as a part of the afternoon program made a great hit. The ladies were showered with the applause of an audience numbering not less than 1200 and their fellow club members felt extremely proud of their work.

Mrs. Henry Ralston, who had rehearsed them for the roles they filled, was especially fine as Lady Macbeth in the sleepwalking scene. She was ably supported by Mrs. Colin Cable as the gentlewoman and Mrs. Canfield as the physician of the same scene.

In two scenes from the comedy "Taming of the Shrew," Mrs. A. H Montgomery's portrayal of Petruchio spouse of Catherine whom he undertakes to tame, was beyond praise and the Catherine of Mrs. Calvin Whiting was no less good. The fine part Grumio, servant to Petruchio, was excellently interpreted by Mrs. O. E Von Oven, curator of the section, and Mrs. Walter Jones' "Hortensio" delineated the friend of Petruchio with rare skill. Mrs. Holbrook likewise covered herself with glory in the role of servant who delivers the dress and cap ordered for Catherine. In the fifth scene which covers the going away on the road of Petruchio, Catherine and Hortensio, there is a meeting with Vincentio, the fine old nobleman who was well personated by Mrs. E. D. Yard.

The performance was spirited and went off smoothly. It won many compliments for the club and the players.

Among the reports from presidents of the various clubs in the district which featured the morning session the contribution of Mrs. Charles Hutchinson, president of the Glendale club was noteworthy.

DINNER PARTY FOR MRS. R. CROWLEY

Mr. and Mrs. S. Houdyshel of 308 North Orange street were host and hostess at a charmingly apopinted dinner Tuesday evening at which their daughter, Mrs. Rella Crowley, who is leaving for her home in Boise, Idaho, Thursday, was the guest of honor. Iris from the garden of their son constituted the floral centerpiece covers being laid for Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Houdyshel, and daughters Eleanor and Roberta; H. D. Houdyshel of Taft; Prof. Sternberg, the paleontologist, who has recently come to Glendale to live and who is an old friend of the Houdyshels; Will Evans of Pasadena, likewise an old friend from the east; Mrs. Crowley, and the host and hostess. A delightful social evening devoted to reminiscences of old friends and old times, followed the dinner.

OLD FRIENDS GLAD TO SEE DUFFIELDS

Among those present at the ceremonies of the new Holy Family Catholic church, Sunday afternoon, were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Duffield, former residents of Glendale, whose home is now the property of Mrs. Lilian Rambeau. They found many old friends delighted to see them.

Mr. Duffield, who is a member of the Morosco Company was loaned by Mr. Morosco to the Lasky studio for some special character work and has just been released from that. He is taking a little rest before resuming his work with the company. In spite of its long run here he says he never got tired of playing the part of father to the "lead," a part so fine that it almost made the play. He also played in "Daddies."

BIRTHDAY PICNIC AT BROOKSIDE PARK

Mrs. A. Englehart of this city provided a birthday surprise for a group of her friends by inviting them to a delightful luncheon which she served at Brookside Park Monday, the party leaving here at 11 a. m. and returning at 5. The birthday was her own, but of that the guests knew nothing until they partook of the handsome birthday cake which was a feature of the delicious menu provided by the hostess. Guests who celebrated with her were Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Weaver, Mrs. F. A. Field, Miss Bessie Field, Mr. and Mrs. Audrey, Mrs. M. L. Hawks and Miss Ida Hawks.

SABRA'S VACATION.

BY SUSANNA MAC MACKIN.

(©, 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Have you made up your mind yet, Sabra, about where you are going to spend your vacation?"

Mrs. Stewart spoke without looking up from the seam she was stitching on the machine when her daughter entered the room.

Sabra Stewart, a slim girl with glossy brown hair brushed back from a smooth brow, stood beside the whirring machine and watched the pretty voile ruffle slip beneath her mother's slender fingers.

"No, mother, I haven't; you know the other two girls can't quite agree about just where they want to go. But really they must decide before a week from next Monday, July the 5th, or—or I'll go off alone."

It was Saturday—the last Saturday in June—and the big office where "the other two girls" and Sabra were employed closed on Saturdays during the summer.

"I need another yard of this voile, Sabra." Mrs. Stewart had finished the ruffle and had begun hastily to baste it to the skirt; "and I wish, Sabra, that you would eat your breakfast and then go down town and get the voile. You'll be back by 11 o'clock and I'll have your dress all ready to try on. I do want to finish today, so you can wear it to church tomorrow."

"It is a beautiful dress, mother, and I think that you are a dear to make so many little ruffles." Sabra kissed her mother and hastened to the kitchen, where her breakfast was nice and hot on the back of the stove.

"Well, I'm glad that she is going to have a real vacation for once in her life." Mrs. Stewart soliloquized when her daughter had left the room; "she has been in that office almost five years and this is her first vacation."

Her breakfast finished, Sabra went up to her room to dress for her trip down town. But first she must count her money, for never before in all her 23 years had Sabra Stewart owned so much money.

From beneath the lavender-scented pad of muslin that covered the bottom of her bureau drawer where she kept her handkerchiefs and laces she drew a number of bills and spread them out upon the table—$53 in all. It was her vacation money and ever since January she had been putting it away—a few dollars at a time out of her "allowance," for Sabra had an allowance of $5 a week for clothes and car fares out of her $15 a week salary.

While she was gathering up her wealth from the table the telephone bell rang, and she heard her mother's voice answering. She listened and soon she was aware that her mother was talking with Aunt Nancy. For a few minutes she stood listening, and into her frank, brown eyes there came a troubled look. She started to go down stairs, then, suddenly changed her mind and put on her hat and coat and went out while her mother was still talking with Aunt Nancy.

It was almost 1 o'clock when she returned. She came laden with a box, a bag, and a couple of bundles.

Her mother, who had been anxiously watching for her since 1 o'clock, let her in.

"Now, don't scold me, mother," the almost breathless girl cautioned the little woman, whose brown eyes were wide with astonishment, "for I have had the—the most thrilling time spending that money—come up stairs till you see."

Deftly the box and bundles were opened and their contents spread out upon the bed; a trim suit of Oxford gray, a blouse of georgette, a white muslin blouse and a smart toque to match the lovely gray suit.

"That suit is a real bargain, mother, and it's just your size, a 38, but you have the privilege of changing it if—"

"But, Sabra," Mrs. Stewart had found her voice again. "Sabra—I—your—your vacation——"

"Oh, vacation," Sabra shrugged her shoulders. "I'm going to stay at home and enjoy solid comfort while you—you are going with Aunt Nancy to swelter and swat sand fleas and mosquitoes around her new cottage."

"But, Sabra," Mrs. Stewart began to protest, "I——"

"I heard you whispering to Aunt Nancy on the telephone this morning," Sabra interrupted, "and you told her that you would love to go, but that you 'had nothing to wear,' and you hadn't, mother, not a thing fit to wear, and all because you insist on my having everything, and, now, please, mother, go and tell her, before she makes other arrangements, that you are going."

And, smiling through her tears, the little woman clutched her daughter's hand and they went down stairs together.

Difficult Situation.

"You look worried, Jack?"

"I am. I'm worried to death. I don't in the least know what to do."

"What is the problem?"

"Why, Gloria Mayfair has promised to marry me, provided my father consents—I wouldn't dare marry without his approval, as he would cut off my allowance. Of course, he won't approve until he has met the girl, yet if I introduce him to her it's a moral certainty that he will fall in love with her himself, and Gloria would be sure to throw me over for a wealthy widower like dad!"

USEFUL LIFE COMES TO PEACEFUL END

John Augustus Roper Rounds Out Almost 91 Years and Expired Last Evening

Just 36 hours after little Lorraine entered the McIntyre home, 135 North Cedar street, another guest, always unwelcome and never bidden, came, and John Augustus Roper fell asleep, but not until his eyes had beheld the little great-granddaughter.

It was at 8:15 Tuesday night that he breathed his last, after an illness of only ten days. Deceased was born in Rutland, Massachusetts, April 27, 1830, hence lacked but a few days of entering his 92d year. When 18 years of age he decided to go west and, journeying to Albany, took passage in a canal boat and after weeks of travel on the Erie canal and great lakes steamers, landed in Milwaukee, Wis. From there he drove to Juneau, 50 miles distant, to make his home. There he married Miss Emmeline Tyler, on April 27, 1853. Just one month previous he joined the Odd Fellows lodge in Horicon, five miles from Juneau, and he continued a member until his death. He and his young wife conducted a hotel, the Juneau House, for a few years, then moved to the old Roper farm where they spent some time, then decided on town life again going to Horicon. Here they lived until 1907, when they moved to Spokane, Wash., to make their home with a son, coming three years later to Glendale to live with their daughter, Mrs. J. F. McIntyre. Mrs. Roper died on June 3, 1919, after a loving companionship of 66 years. The golden wedding was celebrated at Horican, Wisconsin, on April 17, 1903, and all five of Mr. Roper's brothers and sisters were present.

Deceased is mourned by two sons, two daughters and eight grandchildren. He was probably the oldest Odd Fellow in the point of years of membership in the world. For 68 years he had been a member of Horicon lodge never transferring, and he very seldom missed a meeting. While he lived in Glendale some members would come for him in a machine and then take him home. His last meeting was on Thursday, April 2.

Surviving him are the two sons, M. G. of Tacoma and John A., jr., of Spokane; two daughters, Mrs. James Dismukes of Los Angeles and Mrs. J F. McIntyre of Glendale.

Funeral services will be held in Pulliam & Kiefer's parlors at 2 p m. tomorrow, the Odd Fellows in charge and Rev. C. R. Norton officiating.

Interment will be in Grand View cemetery.

MRS. PEARL MOORE 'NIMBLES' HOSTESS

Mrs. Pearl Moore, 1259 South Maryland avenue, was hostess last evening to the members of the Nimble Fingers club at their regular meeting.

A short business session was in charge of the president, Mrs. Gertrude Griffin. The chief business of the evening was the finishing of a comfort; progress was made on other sewing and a "necktie quilt" which was disposed of, netted the ladies the sum of $10. Wililam Crawford in now the possessor of the beautiful quilt, through which fortunate circumstances, he says, he is now able to "wrap the drapery of his couch about him and lie down to pleasant dreams."

Cake and chocolate were the refreshments served by the hostess. Assistant hostesses were Mmes. Hattie Tiffany and Susie Peck.

C. OF C. COMMITTEE ON ENTERTAINMENT

Rev. W. E. Edmonds has been named as chairman of the entertainment committee of the chamber of commerce and other members will soon be announced. It will be their job to take charge when the entertainment of convention delegates or distinguished visitors to our city becomes a chamber responsibility. They will doubtless find plenty to do in connection with the Christian Endeavor convention to be held here in June.

RECENT MOVES

L. Endsley has moved from 347 Ivy to 474 West California, S. J. Gleason from 611 South Brand to 121 West Chestnut, H. A. Doner from 1017 Melrose to 137 North Orange, C. A Fawkes from 129 South Kenwood to 218 South Louise, H. L. Powell to 131 North Adams and Mrs. Mary Redmond to her recently purchased property at 1027 Virginia place.

FAREWELL PARTY FOR MRS. DICKSON

Members of the ladies' aid of the Tropico Presbyterian church gave a reception at the home of Mrs. H. L. Moody in honor of Mrs. Dickson of Eulalia street who, in company with her daughter, is soon to return to her former home in Beaumont. She has been a faithful worker in the society and her departure will be much regretted by her fellow members. A delightful social and musical afternoon was spent, Mrs. S. H. Wilcox contributing a couple of solos. The guest of honor was presented with a fine layer cake, Mrs. S. E. Brown making the presentation speech.

GUARANTORS TO MEET

All guarantors of the Chautauqua are urged to be present tonight at 7:30 at the chamber of commerce. Earl A. Nott, Chautauqua organizer will be present to launch a campaign in the interest of the Chautauqua.

ITS CLASS

"What would you call all the humor which is being expended on the woes caused by prohibition?"

"I should term it dry wit"

RECENT DOINGS OF PYTHIAN KNIGHTS

Esquire rank was conferred in an impressive manner by the officers of Glendale lodge No. 331, Knights of Pythias, at the regular meeting Tuesday evening. Among the visitors present were Dr. H. T. Ratee, J. D. Spence and Mr. Chrisman of Colorado. The address made by Brother Ratee who, on account of invalidism had not visited the lodge in several years, was well received. Professor Hibbert read extracts from an unpublished book of which he is the author and was warmly applauded.

Knight's rank will be exemplified at the next meeting and Page rank at an early date.

A large delegation of officers and members visited Van Nuys lodge last Thursday evening and reported a good time.

SECRETARY RHOADES BUYS RESIDENCE

The Glendale Realty company claims the credit for having sold to James M. Rhoades, secretary of the chamber of commerce, excellent residence property on Hawthorne street, also for the sale of a lot on North Isabel to C. Kaighin. To Mrs. Lottie Logan they have sold two lots on Fairview avenue and a house on Hawthorne street.

ENTERTAINS FOR MISS JESSIE BROWN

Mrs. C. Wilcox of 620 North Maryland avenue entertained at luncheon Tuesday in honor of Miss Jessie Brown of Hollywood, who was a speaker yesterday at the literary section of the Tuesday Afternoon club. She and Miss Brown had been associated in Americanization work among the Mexicans in whom Miss Brown feels an especial interest. Miss Brown is quite a linguist and is teaching classes in one of the Los Angeles night schools that include 17 or 18 nationalities.

Covers were laid for Mrs. A. M. Wililams, Mrs. A. L. Wright, Mrs. Tom Meddick, Miss Brown and the hostess. Following the luncheon the ladies attended the section meeting.

MR. AND MRS. NEIL GIVE A DINNER

Mr. and Mrs. George G. Neil of 360 West Colorado gave a prettily appointed dinner party in honor of friends, including Mr. and Mrs. Frank Foster of Philadelphia, who came to Southern California to escape the snow and cold eastern weather, and Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Downing of Glendale. The hostess selected Cecil Brunner roses together with pink candles and shades as a decorative motif.

PROGRESSIVE TOWN

"I see," remarked a gentleman as he paid a small newsboy for his paper, "that you are putting up a good many new buildings in town."

"That is the only kind we put up here, sir," replied the little fellow with a touch of civic pride.—Judge.

Vida, from the Erse language, is the feminine of David, and as such has the significance of "well beloved."

WOMAN'S COZY CORNER

KEEPING METALS SPOTLESS

There is no part of the household equipment that responds more readily to good care than that made of metal, and none where lack of attention makes itself more evident.

Before beginning to clean any metal one should know the best way to keep it bright and shining with as little time and as little fatigue as possible to oneself and with the least possible destruction to the metal. Metal actually wears away with cleaning, and as our metal utensils are not inexpensive, the last point is an important one. It is not long, unless care is taken, before the nickel faucet shows its brass base.

There are many causes for the unsightly discolorations on our cooking utensils and knives, etc. A grease film (which may be holding dust), soot, charred food, or charred food and grease, all take away from the original beauty of the metal.

Metal becomes discolored because of the action of moisture, of the oxygen or impurities of the air, or of food. The silver spoon or fork that has touched egg yolk is an example of the last named, as a tarnish of silver sulfid is left. Aluminum is even discolored by salt.

The real problem is to find something that will remove the soil on the metal. Daily care of the metals that are in constant use by washing in hot water with soap or a soap powder, does away with the need of much special attention, and two or three tablespoons of dissolved washing soda in the water will help remove the grease; however, any alkaline washing substance should be avoided with aluminum. The use of a cloth with friction will often remove a superficial discoloration. It may be necessary to use an abrasive such as whiting (calcuim carbonate), rouge, fine emery, rottenstone or pumice, bath-brick, sand, or one of the special cleaning agents now on the market. A large cork is convenient to apply the abrasive and is a great saving to the hands.

Care should be taken not to use a gritty cleaner, for example sand, on any of the delicate metals where every scratch is a real blemish. Whiting is always safe when care must be taken. Acids act as a solvent and provide a rapid way of removing the discolorations on some metals. Generally speaking, it is safer to use the acids found in many of the common foods, such as tomatoes, rhubarb (stem and leaves), lemons and vinegar. If concentrated commercial acid is used, dilute with an equal amount of water, adding the acid very slowly to the water. Always label the bottle "Poison." If such an acid is used take care that the utensil is washed very thoroughly with soap and hot water. Sometimes a combination of acid and abrasive is excellent. If a strong solution of soda is required, use one pound of washing-soda to four quarts of water.

Nickel

The so-called nickel in the household is plated on brass, steel and copper, is expensive, and wears off easily if not properly cared for. Nickel can be kept clean with hot water and soap and then dried, as it does not tarnish readily. This metal does become very dark-colored with use. For polishing nickel use a fine abrasive such as whiting moistened with ammonia, a dilute acid, or kerosene.

Porcelain

Tin should be washed in hot water necessary to wash porcelain with soap and water; rinse and dry. A harsh abrasive should never be used, as it will remove glaze. Whiting may be used without danger. A soft cloth moistened with kerosene will remove many stains. For the iron-rust so often found on porcelain, use dilute hydrochloric acid, then wash with soap and water, rinse and dry.

Agate or Enamelware

Wash with hot water and soap. Whenever more severe treatment is necessary, boil for several minutes in a strong soda solution. Wash well, rinse and dry. A fine abrasive may also be used.

Steel

Steel, like iron, rusts where there is moisture. A fine abrasive, oil, and friction will remove the rust. Grease may be removed by boiling in a strong soda solution. The blades of steel knives should be cleaned by scouring with any fine abrasive, such as whiting, bath-brick or fine emery. Wash with hot water and soap. Rinse and wipe very dry.

Tin

Tin should be washed in hot water and soap. If an abrasive is used, select a mild one. When tin becomes discolored and in bad condition, boil for two or three minutes in a strong solution of soda and water. Great care must be taken nnt to let the tin remain in the solution long enough to dissolve the tin and expose the iron. Rust may result. Tin should always be dried thoroughly.

Brass

Use a soda solution to remove the grease. Dilute oxalic acid, undiluted lemon juice or vinegar with a fine abrasive, such as whiting, may be used to remove the tarnish. Rottenstone or tripoli and sweet-oil are excellent to polish after the tarnish has been removed. Dry with a soft cloth.

THE LAUNDRY

A Parable of Safed the Sage

The Waggon of the Laundryman stopped at the door, and left a Package, And Keturah opened it, and checked up the Contents. And she said, Two of thy Collars are missing, and one Cuff; and thy Pajamas have lost a sleeve.

And I went unto the Telephone, and I said unto the Maiden at the Laundry, I beseech thee, send unto me the missing portions of my attire.

And she said unto me, Our manager is out; thou wilt have to see him.

And I went to the Laundry, and I entered it as the Manager entered. And I had in mind to say unto him that his service had grown Intolerable, and that he no longer cleaned Collars but sharpened them and put Saw Teeth upon the edges of them, and that what Clothes he did not lose, he ruined.

And as the Manager entered, there came unto him one of his Assistants, who said unto him, The man at the factory saith that he cannot put in that Crank-shaft for Two Weeks.

And his Bookkeeper said unto him, The Driver of Number Three hath quit, for he had an opportunity to become a Chauffeur for Old Jones who liveth on the Boulevard; and how shall we deliver the Laundry on his run?

And the Forewoman in the Ironing Room said unto him, Saidee is home sick, and Fanny hath gone to the Movies, and Kitty hath sent work that she must attend her Grandmother's funeral, which is probably the Football Game; and two of the Machines in my room are shut down, and the people are kicking because they have not their clothes.

And the Telephone Girl said, We have complaints from the Families whose names and number I have here, and they desire that thou Call them Up and explain.

And he said, I will call them up, but it shall be some time in the Very Remote Future; I have troubles enough.

And other of his Assistants told him that they were nearly out of Soap, and that the people who sold Starch had sent word that they could not fill the order for ten days.

And I entered the Ironing Room, where many Women worked, and I heard them talking as they worked, and all that I heard them say was, And he said to me, and, And I said to him.

And I looked into the Washing Room, and there was Steam, and Suds and Sweat.

And the Manager greeted me with a Tired Look, as if he were to say, And what hast thou brought to add to my Troubles?

But I said unto him, I came to Complain of certain Lost Garments, but I forbear.

And he said pleasantly, Nevertheless, let me know thy Complaint, and we will endeavor to make it Right.

And we went to the Sorting Room, and I saw how the Girls sorted the Laundry, and I thought if any man did ever get what was coming to him, it would have been by Special Providence. And there was a Pile of Arms from shirts, and Legs from other garments, and many things beside. And I found the Arm of my Pajamas.

And I returned unto Keturah, and I said, I will complain no more concerning the man of the Laundry. He hath troubles enough, and I wonder that he doth as well as he doth.

And I considered that it might be the same if I knew more of the affairs of other men concerning whom I have been impatient. And it may be that if men could look into the place in which I endeavor to do my part in Cleaning up the World, they would be more patient with me.

LIVED ON FISH FOR A YEAR

Explorer Stefansson Tells of Year's Fish Diet Without Salt.

That we place too high a value on a great variety of food as necessary to health and good digestion is the opinion of Stefansson, the eminent explorer, who lectures at Chautauqua on the second night, based on his experience in the Arctic, and the experience of those who were with him on his historic expeditions.

"I lived on fish, both raw and cooked, for a whole year, and without salt," Mr. Stefansson says, "and weighed ten pounds more at the end of the year than at the beginning. I was not troubled with indigestion, or any other bad effects. In fact, I can say that I never felt better in my life. Taking up any new system of diet is largely a psychological matter," said Mr. Stefansson. "We have prejudices which it is a difficult matter to overcome. If the animals that are used for food were placed in one group and those that are not considered good for food were placed in another group, and a thoroughly unbiased person were asked for an opinion, he would say there is little or no difference between them."

The strike season is approaching, but mother will containue to put in her usual sixteen hours a day at house-cleaning with no extra pay for overtime and Sundays.

COUNTY FLOOD CONTROL BILL

Measure Before State Legislature Important to Los Angeles County

By JONATHAN S. DODGE
Chairman Board of Supervisors

No bill in the state legislature is of more importance to Los Angeles county than the Flood Control Appropriation bill, appropriating $300,000 a year for a period of ten years for assistance in flood control work.

The bill was recommended favorably by the ways and means committee, and if passed by the assembly, will then be considered by the senate. The bill is essentially the same in form and amount as the one passed two years ago and signed by the governor, assisting flood control work in the Sacramento Valley.

The flood of 1914 caused ten million dollars of damage, and the flood of 1916 almost an equal amount. At least 50 per cent of this damage was caused to public utility corporations, such as steam and electric lines, and telephone and telegraph companies, and should another torrential storm occur, with the mountains denuded of trees and underbrush, it is impossible to compute the tremendous damage that would occur to these great corporations.

In computing the amount of damage in former storms, neither the interruption to traffic nor the silt deposit in San Pedro harbor has been taken into account. None of these public utility corporations will pay one cent towards the large flood control work that has been under construction for the last two years unless the bill is passed. It has been figured that corporations will pay into the state treasury in the next two years $81,000,000, of which sum more than 1-3 will be paid by Los Angeles capital and Los Angeles people. The return of $300,000 a year to assist in constructing works that will protect the investment and insure the collection of taxes from these great corporations should be favored by all parties in the state.

Any money received by the board of supervisors will be used in continuing the control dams in the canyons and in straightening and protecting the water channels leading to the sea.

The original plans for flood control protection were made by a board of five engineers in 1915, consisting of H. Hawgood, Chas. T. Leeds, J. P. Lippincott, F. H. Olmstead and J. W. Reagan, and who estimated the cost at $16,508,900. In 1917 a modified program was provided and bonds voted on the basis of costing $4,450,000.

Among the dams of importance might be mentioned the Devil's Gate dam, the San Dimas dam, the Pacoima dam and the Live Oak dam, all of which are designated as control dams that will control flood waters in the winter season and at the same time conserve the surplus water for summer use. Only one of these dams has been completed, namely, the Devil's Gate dam, and even now the permanent headgates, which will cost $40,000, have not been installed.

It is imperative that additional funds should be provided before these great control dams can be completed.

The rising cost of materials and labor indicates that a comprehensive system of flood control protection will cost not less than $30,000,000, not including the proposed dam at the forks of the San Gabriel, which alone would probably cost $15,000,000 more.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 20, 1921

No fool like a young fool that tries to act like an old fool.

A baby ought to be happy. It has a rattling good time.

It is easier to go down hill than to back up, but this is the point: you CAN back up.

The kind of man that nearly everybody tries to deceive is the one they know deceives himself.

An optimist is a business man who in spite of all his experience, expects to find good news in the mail he receives on the first day of the month.

The woman who believes she has been "stung" in the man she married, has the consolation of knowing that most other women think the same thing about themselves.

Who remembers the old-fashioned grandmother who went around the house looking for her spectacles which she had pushed up on her head?

While the Anti-Tobacco league is trying to deprive mere man of his pipe and cigar it might extend its activities and start a few reforms for the women. Why not extend the ban to exclude vanity bags and powder puffs, rouge and hair dyes, peek-a-boo hosiery and abbreviated dresses, corsets and spike-heeled shoes, ice cream sodas and chocolate creams.

This is Kindness to Animals Week in the United States. Why not also make it Kindness to Others Week? Some people are more kind to animals than they are to human beings, and if they would try being kind to others for a week they might get the habit.

THE AUTOMOBILE SPEEDER

All over the country police forces are getting after automobile speeders. Yet the speeding keeps infecting more men. More than 40,000 people were arraigned in the traffic court of New York city for this offense last year. Whenever a sincere effort is made to enforce automobile regulations similar reports come in.

The speed mania affects many people who usually are courteous and considerate. Many of them have no eye for distance and have no conception of their rate of speed. The figures on their whirling speedometers mean nothing to them.

THE NAVY AND FUEL OIL

Whether or not the United States naval fleet will be concentrated on the Pacific coast will depend largely upon the oil situation. Of course, oil can be had in sufficient quantities for the fleet, but the question is, how much will the supplying of the entire navy with California oil disturb the western industrial supply? The Federal power commission will be asked to investigate and report.

If the fleet can be supplied with fuel oil without disturbing industrial business, indications are that three-fourths of the navy, and probably more, will be concentrated on the Pacific. This will mean the construction of additional navy supply stations and repair yards on the Pacific coast.

Southern California has three available harbors that will probably be benefited, San Pedro, Newport, and San Diego. There is now a naval base at San Pedro and one at San Diego. Newport harbor, now in the making, can be made a naval base, and there have been rumors of a submarine base in Alamitos bay between Long Beach and Seal Beach.

THE ONLY WAY

Now and then we are reminded of the old Indian who heard that his white brother gained much comfort from sleeping on feathers, and who one night secured a single feather, slept on that feather all night, and arose in the morning to declare that the white man was a confirmed fool.

Sleeping on a single feather and expecting to be comfortable is about like putting one ad. in a newspaper and expecting to get rich. You've got to have several feathers to make a bed, and you've got to run several ads to build up a business. The Glendale merchant who feels the pulling power of advertising will tell you that spasmodic advertising seldom pays. You have got to keep hammering it into the heads of the people you want to sell to that you have what they want and at a price that will satisfy them. The makers of Pears soap advertised for fifty years, and a few years ago they stopped advertising and tried to live on their reputation. It only took a few years for them to see that the soap men who were advertising were putting them out of business, and they started advertising again before it was too late. There is only one way to advertise—and that is regularly and systematically.

If you toot your little tooter, then lay away your horn,
Within a week there's not a soul who'll know that you are born.
The man who advertises by short and sudden jerks
Is the man who's always kicking because it never works.
The fellow who is on the job, a-humping every day,
And keeps forever at it, is the one who makes it pay.

SMILES

Maid (from next door)—"Mr. Jones sends his compliments and would you please shoot your dog, as it keeps him awake?"

Mr. Snapp—"Give my respects to Mr. Jones and tell him I shall greatly be his debtor if he will poison his daughter and burn her piano."

INFORMATION

"Mother, do cows and bees go to heaven?"

"Mercy, child, what a question? Why?"

"Because, if they don't the milk and honey the preacher said was up there must be all tinned stuff."

WEDDING RINGS AS BRANDS FOR MEN

Quaint Conceit That England Is at Present Discussing for Male Folk

By EARLE C. REEVES
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

RINGS FOR MEN

Dear lady, you maintain that man should wear
A wedding ring, and, as you changed your style
From Miss to Mrs., think that he should bear
Such outward symbol too.
Forgive the smile
Which I can scarce repress.
It is a tribute to your sweet ingenuousness.
Mrs. means "Mistress." Is it not enough?
Should you call "Master" him that is your slave?
You know his talk of lordship is but bluff;
'Tis up to you to teach him to behave,
And, if he sports a ring,
'Tis through his nose, poor chap, that he should wear the thing.

C. E. R.

LONDON, April 20.—Shall they be branded? If so, how?

Columns of valuable news print are being given to the subject. Judging by the number of letters the editors receive the controversy must rank among what is known in the trade as 'circulation builders." For a lot of folk must be buying newspapers to follow the fight and see what the decision will be.

The subject, of course, is MAN.

To be more specific—the married man.

Why should he go his way, indistinguishable from the unfettered male, while his spouse wears a plain gold mark of servitude? The origin of the question is lost in comparative antiquity. No one remembers exactly who or what newspaper first propounded the inquiry. And, so far, none knows where it will end.

Let the unmarried man continue to be known as "Master' until he is married. Then let him become "Mister." Such is one suggestion.

Others cite perfectly logical reasonings against the convention of changing the wife's name and making no change in that of the man.

A facetious male, who confesses that he has worn a wedding ring himself for twenty years, suggests that the only sure solution is to brand married men with an "M" on the forehead. While an editorial writer gravely discusses this and that side of the subject and concludes with a warning—presumably to Britain's millions of surplus women—that if the young bachelor is to be branded at the altar he'll very probably decide to remain a bachelor.

And Lady Tree thinks it's all useless talk.

"There need be no badge of servitude," she writes. "There need be no plain gold circlet to single out the married man. He is unmistakable.

"It is not that he is particularly careworn. I have known men married and not careworn. Nor is he preternaturally gay—though there have been men both gay and married. There does not brood upon his brow that undefinable expression—half smug, half furtive, that we know so well.

"Suffice to say that married men pretending to be unmarried would not deceive a child.

"But since the custom of husbands wearing wedding rings has evidently come to stay, let us at least observe it systematically.

"Let us have a hoop of gold, platinum, silver or iron (according to the means and status of the wearer) upon the third finger of the left hand of every married man.

"If, unhappily, he becomes a widower, a circlet of pearls (Orient, imitation of Christmas cracker) should adorn the second finger; and if, still more unhappily, again a widower, a ring, worn in addition to the other two, upon the first finger should be "de riguer." And for this I know of no prettier device than a blend of plaited hair.'

"In the case (and this the unhappiest of all) of a widower determined never to marry again, a single diamond, like a bright tear petrified, should be settled upon the thumb.

"And for the henpecked husband—but no! I never could see the affinity between the nose and the ring."

WORKING TOWARD SECOND MILLION

Building Permits Still Coming Fast and March's Record Is Being Overtaken

April is lagging a little behind March thus far in permits, but is making a grand record, anyhow. On the night of March 18 the total was $279,225 and on April 18 it was $217,168. But there are enough new buildings in sight to even up the record in a few days. The total for April thus far is $223,918 and for the year $1,038,841. Permits issued since yesterday noon are as follows:

Julius Kranz, 3-room, 2-story store building, 247-249-251 North Brand	$15,000
Lewis E. Jackman, 5 rooms, 1256 Walnut	4,000
Anna Malone, 5 rooms, 418 South Adams	2,500
Samuel Scholtzhauer, 5 rooms, 1304 East California	2,000
Joseph E. Zink, 3 rooms, 211 Tast Park	1,350
S. S. Bercan, 2-room, office building, 305-307 South Brand	500
J. F. McDermott, remodeling residence	500
Mrs. C. H. Abbott, 2-room addition, 362 West Elk	250
A. G. S. Peterson, 2-room garage and store house, 170 South San Fernando road	300

APPEARED IN SUIT

"Have you ever appeared as a witness in a suit before?" asked the bullyragging attorney.

"Why, of course," replied the young lady on the witness-stand.

"Then tell the jury just what suit it was!" demanded the attorney.

"It was a blue suit, with a white collar and white cuffs, and white buttons all the way down the back," replied the young lady.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

"I should like to go to New York," said the weary and subdued traveler.

"Are you asking for information," said the young woman at the desk, "or are you merely telling your troubles?"—Washington Star.

MUSIC

Chautauqua is a veritable festival of music. Lieurance's Little Symphony Orchestra is scheduled for two notable concerts. Then there is the Sam Lewis Company, headed by the prominent Welsh tenor, Sam Lewis; the Orpheus Four, America's foremost male quartet; the Jugo-Slav Tamburica Orchestra; Walter Jenkins; the Roach-Freeman Company. Twelve concerts in all—certainly the music alone is worth far more than the cost of the season ticket.

LECTURES

Many notables appear on the Chautauqua lecture staff this season. Stefansson, the famous Arctic explorer, is one of the head-liners. Peter Clark Macfarlane, noted American writer, is another. Add to these two celebrities the name of Tom Skeyhill, just back from Russia, Hunt Cook of the Chicago Art Institute, Father Cronin and Burnell Ford, inventor and electrical scientist.

ENTERTAINMENT

An outstanding entertainment event is scheduled for the fifth night in a big play production presented by the Keighley Broadway Players with an all-professional cast. Another entertainment feature of note comes in the two programs to be presented by Ada Roach and Ruth Freeman on the second day. This is a duo with a country-wide reputation.

FEELS QUEER TO BE QUEEN OF JUNGLE

Pretty American Heiress Tells of Vast Territory Exceeding 1,440,000 Acres

By WILLIAM G. CAYCE
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

OAKLAND, April 20.—"How does ti feel to be a jungle queen?"

Very frankly pretty Miss Ella Mair Benett does not know. At least that is what she told the interviewer shortly after she had learned that she had become the mistress of a vast domain of South American jungle through the same court decree which gave her a divorce from Bruce Vincent Douglas and permitted her to resume her maiden name.

"I'd much rather not talk," she said with a wan smile at her cozy little apartment upon her arrival there from her duties as a hair-dresser in a downtown beauty establishment.

"It's all such a surprise. It hardly seems possible, but I know it is true as my attorney tells me there is no question as to my legal right to the property which belonged to my husband. I feel a bit tired this evening—as I usually do."

The uncrowned queen of a principality larger than many European countries and sole ruler of a kingdom of 1,440,000 acres is a good-looking brunette, who looks younger than the 22 years credited to her.

Has No Plans

"It has come too suddenly to make plans," she said in response to a query as to what disposition she would make of the property awarded to her by Judge A. F. St. Sure in lieu of alimony.

"Will you go down and develop it yourself or sell it?" persisted the interviewer.

"That question I can't answer just now, for I will not be granted my final decree of divorce for a year, and until that time my attorney tells me I will be unable to actually take possession of the property. That gives me plenty of time to plan.

"Yes, I'd like to go down there, but perhaps it would not be the best thing to do. I really don't feel like a queen at all."

"You will give up your position?" she was asked.

"No, not at all. I'll be back at work tomorrow as usual. There is really no reason why I should give it up, is there?" she parried naively.

Mrs. Douglas, or Miss Bennett as her decree entitles her to be called, lives with her mother and sister.

Both her mother and sister are guarding her against publicity in connection with her newly won domain. It was only after persistent efforts that she agreed to see the interviewer, and not until she had received word from her attorney that it "would be all right to talk."

Prefers Her Romance

She was much more willing to discuss her romance with Douglas, now serving time in Sing Sing, than how it feels to be a jungle queen.

"Mr. Douglas was a diplomat, explorer and soldier of fortune. I met him in Oakland, early in 1920. We were married in New York city a short time after—April 2, to be exact. The day after the wedding I was forced to return to Oakland because of business reasons relative to Mr. Douglas. He followed me here a month later and we left for a honeymoon."

"I understand it was a rather whirlwind affair," the interviewer asked.

"Whirlwind is right," she said, laughingly. "In less than a month we toured the entire United States, always stopping at the best hotels and taking in every worth-while amusement. He seemed to have plenty of money, and I never thought anything but that he was a millionaire until when in Seattle he was arrested on a charge of passing fictitious checks, and is now in Sing Sing serving time. I understand he is wanted in practically every state in the union on the same charge and that the Northwest Mounted Police want him for something."

"But how did Mr. Douglas acquire the territory awarded you in Brazil?"

Sure of Title

"The property was awarded him by Dan Manuel Valdez for the Brazilian government. The property originally belonged to Valdez's father, who had been given it by the queen of Portugal years before. My attorney has investigated the matter thoroughly and says there is no question as to my ownership of it.

"The tract is 175 miles long and 130 miles wide. It is located in the province of Mattagorssa and is bounded by the River Juruenna, the Rio Tapogas, and the Rio Sumidor rivers. It is some 700 miles inland, but there is only one mountain range between it and the coast, and transportation facilities would not be difficult to establish, as there is a railroad now within 30 miles of it.

"Whether or not Mr. Douglas aided the late Theodore Roosevelt in his explorations of Brazil I can't say. I do not believe he was with Roosevelt, for he told me he was in Brazil before Roosevelt."

The life of Douglas, as detailed by his divorced wife, sounds more like an over-colored modern novel than a chapter from real life.

According to Mrs. Douglas her husband is but 33 years old, and despite his youthfulness served as a major in the Brazilian army for many months years ago. He also is said to have discovered the "River of Doubt," made famous by Theodore Roosevelt, and carried on Roosevelt's work of exploration into new territory.

"Mr. Douglas was made a major in the Brazilian army because he suppressed a revolutionary uprising in that country, so he told me," she said.

"The country is really not a jungle," Mrs. Douglas added, "and contains a vast growth of rubber trees, mahogany, hardwoods of a rare and costly variety, besides an abundance of tropical nuts and fruits, valuable mines of gold, silver and diamonds, and other minerals.

"I have never been in the country, but have information that it is now inhabited by semi-civilized Indians, who are making an effort to develop the resources there. Because of this it seems to me that it would be easy to develop the country. But, as I said, I have no definite plans as yet, because the whole thing came as such a complete surprise."

According to Mrs. Douglas her husband's real name is Hugh N. Newell.

PARIS REDS PLAN MAY DAY TERRORS

Unemployed to March on Palaces of Latin Quarter to Raid "Newly Rich"

By NEWTON C. PARKE
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

PARIS, April 20.—The annual campaign to create a reign of terror in Paris on May Day has just been launched by French Communist leaders.

The first shot is an article in the Communist organ, Humanite, inviting "120,000" unemployed of Paris to march on the gilded dance palaces of Montmartre as a demonstration against the reckless expenditure of money by Americans, South Americans, English and French "newly rich." This article, it is understood, will shortly be followed by others with the object of stirring up the unemployed to a great manifestation on the first day of May.

"We cannot better symbolize the scandalous state of present day morals than to point out to the 120,000 unemployed in Paris the character and costly divertissements and the clientele of the Montmartre establishments where a small minority spend their nights," begins Humanite. "With the official complicity of the police, a band of profiteers are exploiting the newly rich and the foreigners under every possible form.

Complain of Prices

"Since the armistice, and even during the last six months these night 'joints' have continued to multiply. An entire section of Paris (Montmartre) is infested with them. They serve champagne suppers at outrageous prices. Some of them are full until daybreak despite solemn police regulations that provide for their closing at 2 a. m. And the only answer the police give is this: 'Well we can't all be bishops.'

"The personnel of these places include, in addition to the waiters, wine merchants and professional dancers, a horde of young and old women, more or less undressed, for the benefit of the clients, some musicians and a few 'detectives.' The clients spend fortunes every night. One night all the unemployed of Paris should march on the Place Pigalle (center of Montmartre) to show these reckless spenders their misery."

The police have taken no extra precautions as a result of the Communist appeal. Most of the Montmartre night establishments lie along narrow streets, converging on the Place Pigalle, or intersecting the Rue Pigalle. Previous experience in May Day rioting, especially around the Place de la Republique, has taught the French police that such a section can easily be defended against mobs.

The Paris Federation of Labor has announced that it will observe May Day on May 1, though that day is Sunday this year. The Communist leaders are proposing to continue demonstrations the following day.

NOT EVEN OUT OF THE ORDINARY HERE

A Paris dispatch states that French boxing fans received the shock of their lives the other day when a certain popular boxer told them that he had been boxing with only one eye for the past four years. He said he was stone blind in one glim.

Over here we get no thrill at that. Think of the number of boxers we have without heads; think of the hundreds without right hands; think of the millions without brains.

As for sightless persons, pipe some of the blind judges at Madison Square Garden. Then, again, look at the number of jockeys we have riding with cabbages on their shoulders instead of heads. Don't forget, too, our landlords without hearts.

When a man is fat he's fat and that's all there is to it, but a woman is never more than plump.

Many a solemn-faced man gets the reputation for wisdom when he's only a chronic grouch.

"Minnie," asked a mother of her daughter who had the telltale habit, "why is it you can't keep a secret?"

"Because, mother," explained the precocious miss, "two of my front teeth are gone and the secrets just slip out."

"Auntie, can you change a dime for me?"

"How do you want it changed, dear?"

"Into a quarter, please."

Mother (in railroad coach, to her eight-year-old). "Mary, don't you see the people looking at you? Stop stratching your gum out in a string; chew it like a lady."

Guest—I want some raw oysters. They must not be too large or too small; not too salty, and not too fat. They must be cold; and I want them quick.

Waiter—Yes, sir. Will you have them with or without pearls, sir?

KAISER NEEDED OUR JAZZ MUSIC

Berlin Satirist Says Germany Wants Pep—Tells About American Dance

By FRANK E. MASON
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, April 20.—Jazz music might have seved the Kaiser from his fall, "Aber Ach! he never learned it," regrets Hans Siemsen, the satirist, explaining jazz to Germany in the current issue of the Welt Buehne, or World Stage.

"America, so they say, has no liquor," writes Herr Siemsen. "But they don't need it. They have jazz bands. These are orchestras which can make you drunk without alcohol. Jazz is a cross between European dance music and American negro music.

"There is a piano, a violin and perhaps a bass viol. But especially there are cymbals, triangles, drums and a variety of nameless, highly fantastic instruments which, rather than producing music, cause a sort of musical din.

"The fat man who plays these instruments is the soul, the good spirit of the jazz band. He doesn't play them all at once; sometimes he uses this, sometimes that. When the table full of musical appliances doesn't suffice he grabs something from the wall. The pianist and violinist play—well, at least very un-European, but the fat man surpasses them all. He gurgles on a bassoon-like horn (the saxophone is unknown to Germany) an independent bass melody without bothering in the least about what his comrades are playing.

"Then he decides that for the next passage of music a flute melody is more suitable and picks up a flute. Or he tinkles a triangle. He always knows exactly what is necessary and supplies the music with anything it lacks, whether a boom, a shrill cry or a deep-toned, mysterious gong. And if he hasn't anything else to do he sits down beside the pianist who for a single person is already doing pretty well in imitating a four-handed player, and plays whatever comes into his head — perhaps a chromatic scale And at the same time he sings a negro melody.

"Perhaps you think this is ridiculous. It is comical—but it is also beautiful. Like the cubist pictures of Picasso, or the acquarels of Klee. Seemingly senseless and not harmonious, in truth in its very discord it has harmony.

"This music, this rhythm which contradicts all common sense, is irresistable, like poison or alcohol. Jazz music gets into your very bones, into your limbs. It sets those who really understand it into motion like marionettes. (But it must be a real jazz band The fat man must be a musical genius. There are frightfully poor imitations. Anyone who has heard him must think me an idiot. Beware of imitations.)

"The couple dancing to this hypnotic music are not moving of their own volition, but are controlled by the music. At least, they are in the power of the music if they dance well. They proceed slowly and calmly to the beat of the bass drum. Suddenly the shrill tone of the flute penetrates their very bones, their knees bend and they make several steps with swaying bodies until the bass drum steadies them. Then comes the run on the clarinet and they turn about like a corkscrew. This music controls the dancers as if they were dolls jumping at the pulling of a string.

"It's a wonderful sensation to surrender yourself to this ryhthm, with neither will nor reason. If you have a jazz band you need no brandy; you need no gin.

"But the most beautiful characteristic of jazz is its complete lack of dignity. Jazz destroys the last semblance of dignity, of stiffness and propriety. Anyone who fears to make himself ridiculous cannot dance to jazz. The German professor cannot dance it; the Prussian reserve officer couldn't dance it. If only all the professors and privy councillors and ministers were compelled to dance to jazz, how human, how amiable, how comical they would all become. The humbug circle of stupidity, of vanity and dignity could not exist. If the Kaiser had only danced to jazz, all this would never have taken place. Aber Ach! he never learned it. To be German Kaiser is easier than to dance to jazz.

BOXING BOUTS IN MAINE FAKED, CHARGE

(By International News Service)

AUGUSTA, Me., April 20.—Jack Magee, athletic coach at Bowdoin College, declared before the committee on judiciary that three out of very five main boxing bouts in Maine are faked.

This statement was made at the hearing on the bill to regulate boxing, drawn by John D. Clifford, Jr., a Lewiston attorney, introduced in the house by Representative Benedict F. Mather, of Augusta.

In his statement to the committee, Magee said that under the present laws of Maine the Massachusetts boxers who come into this state for shows get together beforehand and "frame" their bout to box through six rounds and loaf through the last six and then rush to a telephone and tell the sporting papers that each won the bout.

"NOTHING BUT THE TRUTH"

Great Comedy Hit Made Famous by Willie Collier Is Scheduled for Chautauqua Patrons on Fifth Night

Could you tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth for twenty-four hours? Robert Bennett wagers $10,000 that he can do this herculean task and out of the consequences of his attempt to carry out the wager grow many screamingly funny situations. "Nothing But the Truth," when presented by Willie Collier in New York was declared the most successful comedy that had been presented to Broadway audiences in years. It will be presented at Chautauqua on the Fifth night by the Keighley Broadway Players with an all-professional cast.

J. K. TODD TO HAVE LATEST EQUIPMENT

The motoring people of Glendale will no doubt be interested to know that the new building just completed at 130 South Glendale avenue, was built and equipped for automobile painting, trimming, monograming and metal work.

Particular attention has been given to afford abundant light in the new shop and anyone interested in pleasing color schemes on beautifully painted and upholstered automobiles will know that light is an important factor for this kind of work.

J. K. Todd, the owner and manager of this business, has been greatly encouraged by various people who have heretofore had their painting done in Los Angeles and feels that his ability in this line of endeavor will bring him many satisfied customers. He has prepared an instruction sheet, on washing and caring for a newly-finished auto, and will be pleased to give one of these to anyone calling at his place of business.

Mr. Todd came to Los Angeles from Detroit, Mich., last June, and after looking over the suburbs of the big city decided that Glendale was the most promising field for investment so he bought the lot at 130 South Glendale avenue and one at 444 West Wilson. On the former he has put up the shop, 50x80, and on the latter a very fine home, which he and his wife and son now occupy. When a new man in a community invests between $15,000 and $20,000 in improvements, it shows he has absolute faith in its future. Mr. Todd has brought in three new workmen, two of them with families, to become citizens and they are now looking for homes.

NEALE & GREGG TAKE TIME BY FORELOCK

H. S. Webb had a bright idea but C. E. Neale of the Neale & Gregg Hardware company claims he was in on the same high-power line of foresight.

Fearing what their landlord might do to them should property values soar to the altitudes predicted, he and his partner made sure of a good business location by the purchase of a Brand boulevard lot in the block north and then proceeded to close a lease for ten years in their present location.

He says now he has the best landlord in the city.

Mr. Neale declares the firm is being pestered with applicants who want to buy their business but they have no idea of selling.

In company with E. J. Jackson of the Burbank Hardware company, Mr. Neale will attend the annual convention of the California Retail Hardware Dealers' Association, Southern Division, at Santa Ana on Wednesday. There will be morning and afternoon sessions and a banquet and entertainment in the evening.

CROWN PRINCE OF JAPAN IS POET

American Charge d'Affaires Interviews Future Ruler of Japanese Nation

By DUKE N. PARRY
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

TOKIO, April 20.—An incident connected with the departure of the Crown Prince of Japan for foreign lands not generally known but now carefully filed away in the archives of the state department in Washington, occurred at the Akasaka palace in Tokio a few days before his highness left.

The prince was giving a farewell banquet for the heads of the various embassies and legations in Tokio and after a banquet which will be long remembered as a marvel for beauty and excellent food, the ambassadors ministers and charges stood outside the prince's private room waiting for the coveted short informal conversation which they were to have with the future emperor of Japan. Sir Charles Eliot, ambassador from Great Britain; Basil Krupenski, ambassador from Russia (the Russian government is recognized by Japan); and numerous others ranking as ambassadors, had their few moments of informal conversation.

Mr. Edward Bell, American charge d' affaires, ranking as a charge, was among the last to enter. It was known that the crown prince talked little English and that his usual topics were: "Do you like Tokio?" "Are you anxious to see our beautiful cherry blossom season?" or some other subject of passing importance.

These topics had been taking less than five minutes for discussion, and for that reason, when Mr. Bell remained with the prince five minutes, then ten, the waiting ambassadors and ministers fidgeted. "Is he signing a new treaty, starting a war, or what?" was the remark made by one of the older members of the corps diplomatique.

Quite naturally, therefore, when Mr. Bell came out he was asked numerous questions as to the length of time he had conversed with the crown prince. When he replied that the prince was simply questioning him regarding the poetry of Mrs. Charles Burnett wife of the military attache of the American embassy, his hearers were astounded.

Mrs. Burnett ranked high in the new year poetry contest held by the imperial household. She was summoned numerous times by the former empress dowager before the latter's death and was remembered in the will of the empress when she died. Her poem, "And You Shall Walk Therein," written on the occasion of the prince's departure for Europe, and sent from Japan to all the countries included on the imperial trip, has created much favorable comment in court circles.

So when Mr. Bell entered he was not greeted by a formal crown prince but instead, without introductory remarks, his highness said: "Have you read Mrs. Burnett's poems?"

To which the American charge d' affaires replied that he had, and there followed a ten-minute conversation on the splendid worth of Mrs. Burnett's works. Now, rumor in the capital has it, whenever Mr. Bell meets the British ambassador they discuss the relative merits of British and American amateur poets in Japan. And Mr. Bell is very apt to tell of the conversation of the crown prince, in which, this same report has it, the work of a prominent and beautiful American lady of Japan comes in for a large share of mention.

PLANS FOR VACATION FROM JULY 5 TO 9

At a meeting Monday evening at the First Methodist church, attended by pastors of most of the Glendale churches as well as two lay representatives from each church, plans were made for a community vacation Bible school to be held from July 5 to July 9.

It is planned to hold sessions in four centers, so that it may be convenient for children in all parts of the city to attend.

A board of education will arrange the course of study, which will include classes in manual training, sewing, music and drawing, as well as daily Bible classes. A superintendent will have charge of the work of the teachers.

Dr. C. M. Crist was elected chairman of the organization and Rev. O. P. Rider secretary. Another meeting will be held next Monday evening to perfect plans of the organization.

VALUE OF BRUESS ADVERTISING

In enlarging upon the $8,000,000 manufacturing projects he is promoting and proposes to locate just west of Glendale, Mr. Bruess says that the three factories he has in mind would each require 250 executives which would probably require the building of a five-story office building, one whole floor to be allowed to each project, the other two to be used as an auditorium and for club purposes.

He declared an intention to use the name Glendale in connection with one of his plants even though it be outside the corporate limits of the city. Mr. Lusby then asked if his office building would also be named for Glendale, which drew a laugh. The point made by the promoter is the financial benefit Glendale will derive from the advertisement Glendale will receive through his projects, also the growth of the town that will follow the establishment of plants and the residence here of employes.

CROWD GATHERS AT TABERNACLE

John Brown Made First Appearance Last Night and Pleases Audience

A huge audience greeted Evangelists John E. Brown and Otis Ironmonger when they made their first appearance at the Glendale Tabernacle Tuesday night, following a strenuous and very successful series of meetings at Hanford. He disclaimed any intention of preaching in the accepted meaning of that term but invited his audience to hear him in a little "talk" which proved most acceptable, its theme being "Under the Juniper Tree." From Elijah's experience in that episode the evangelist drew valuable lessons for the Christian. He said he had been outside the desert and from under the juniper tree for the past 15 years and had resolved that so long as God lives he will stay outside. "So," he declared, "if you ever hear that John Brown has gone back under the juniper tree, you may know that God is dead." Though he showed signs of fatigue from work and travel, the evangelist's smile and cheery laugh were just as ready as ever and he made his usual good impression on the audience.

No less satisfactory was the work of Otis Ironmonger with the big chorus made up of singers from the choirs of local churches, his own solos being much enjoyed.

Rev. Brown, who has has experience enough in such matters to be a good forecaster, predicts the greatest revival that Glendale has ever experienced, and the clergymen who are supporting him are equally optimistic. The preacher announced that his sermon tonight will be on "Doubts."

FINE PROGRAM FOR FORUM LUNCHEON

The Chamber of Commerce dinner and forum to be held in the high school cafeteria Thursday evening, April 21, at 6:30 o'clock, promises to be the best one that has yet been given. Carl A. Bundy, who is a speaker with plenty of punch, will be the chief orator and will give a talk well worth hearing. There will also be a fine musical program by Mmes. Catherine H. Shank, Laurie H. Yost, Alice Crawford and Miss Elena Warriner, as follows:

Trio—"The Pool" (From "Three" Springs") ..... Bliss
Mrs. Catherine H. Shank, Mrs. L. H. Yost and Mrs. A. Crawford
"One Golden Day" ..... Foster
"At the Well" ..... Aageman
Mrs. Catherine Shank
Duo—(From "Madame Butterfly") ..... Puccini
Mrs. Catherine Shank and Mrs. Laurie Yost
"The Wind Song" ..... Rogers
"Will O' the Wisp" ..... Spross
Mrs. Laurie Yost
"Mimi" Air (La Boheme) ..... Puccini
"Robin, Sing Me a Song" ..... Spross
Mrs. Alice Crawford
Trio—"The Great Waterfall," Bliss
Mrs. Shank, Mrs. Yost and Mrs. Crawford
Accompanist, Miss Elena Warriner.

Members who wish reservations are requested to telephone the chamber of commerce as soon as possible. Call Glendale 1262.

MRS. WM. BRUMMEL ENTERTAINS LADIES

Mrs. William Brummel entertained with an afternoon at cards yesterday, at her home, 341 West Patterson avenue. Guests of the afternoon were ladies of the Church of the Holy Family and their friends.

Assisting hostesses were Mmes Buechler, McGavan, Long and Phisterer. The 500 prize was won by Mrs. Reed Heustis, while the whist prize went to Mrs. Blanchard.

A large and beautiful bouquet of General McArthur roses gathered from Mrs. Brummel's garden and her home was auctioned and the proceeds given to the church building fund. This auction and the silver offering netted the sum of $31. Last week's silver tea at the home of Mrs. Bray brought the ladies $71 for their fund, and the proceeds of the food sale last Saturday morning were $37.

The lady who bought the roses presented them to Father O'Neill.

Come to the Palace Grand Thursday evening and get acquainted with "FOURTEEN" of your "NEIGHBORS" and help the Tuesday Afternoon Club house fund.—Advertisement.

ALUMNI REUNION AND CARNIVAL

High revels will be held on June 3 at the Glendale Union high school by the Alumni Association.

A representative body of members of the organization assembled last evening at the home of one of their number, Mrs. Sydney M. Simon, 500 North Isabel street, to make plans for an alumni reunion and carnival to be held on the above date from noon to midnight.

Assembly and a vaudeville show will occupy the first period, from 12:45 to 1:30. Mrs. Dwight Stephenson will have charge of the vaudeville show. The second period, from 1:30 to 2:15, will be devoted to viewing the art exhibit which the high school will give on that day; the period from 2:30 to 3:30 will be given over to a baby show; the prize, a beautiful loving cup, will go to the class showing the largest number of babies belonging to its members. Miss Loraine Mitchell has charge of arrangements for this show. A baseball game between an alumni team and a high school team is being arranged by Lehman Crandall, to take pleae at 3:30.

Supper will be served from 5 to 8; arrangements for this event are being made by Misses Jane Snyder and Ellen Hanson, of the domestic science department of the high school.

Election of officers and a sport dance will occupy the evening hours. Dues in the association are 50 cents a year. Invitations will be sent out to every graduate of the high school whom it is possible to reach. The association numbers among its members graduates of every class since the first graduation in 1904.

Another alumni meeting will be held on May 3.

W. C. T. U. CONVENES IN PASADENA TODAY

The county convention of the W. C. T. U. opened in Pasadena this morning with a large attendance. Meetings will be held tomorrow and Friday, also.

A large number of Glendale members are in attendance. Mrs. L. C. Yeoman, 113 North Orange street, is the county president. Delegates at large are Mrs. Ruby Smart, president of the local branch, Mmes. Norton Hattie Gaylord, Richardson. Delegates are Mmes. T. L. Brown, Annie Sipple, Nanna Palmer, Edith Glassie Marie Gifford, Edith Dockeray, Carl Pettit; alternates, Mmes. C. A. Brandstater, I. O. Ford, A. E. Goode, Jennie Mottern, T. L. Brown, E. D. Potter and Flora Smith.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS MAKE HIT AS COOKS

Misses Dorothy Danner and Eleanor Foster were given the credit for the delicious meal served to members of the chamber of commerce directorate Tuesday noon in the domestic science bungalow of the high school. The menu included baked potatoes, salmon souffle, carrot timbate, vegetable salad in jelly mould, Parker House rolls, coffee, and for dessert cake a la mode with strawberry whip. When one knows what fine meals the girls are furnishing for the money there is no room for wonder over the large attendance on these luncheons. The young cooks and hostesses were assisted by their classmates—Elaine Francis, Lois Schuyler, Marguerite McGuire, Edith Schuyler and Viola Andrews.

"CHICKEN IN THE CASE" AT GLENDALE THEATER

Victor Heerman understands Owen Moore, and when a director understands his star, theatergoers are bound to be treated to a rare good production. Such is the case with "The Chicken in the Case," which was shown at the Glendale theater yesterday. Mr. Heerman is both the author and director of the picture, having written the story for Mr. Moore and, understanding the star's qualifications, he built his story to fit. And fit it does.

Owen Moore was never more at home than in the role of the bungling country youth who, having gotten the habit of borrowing anything belonging to his best friend, borrows his wife to aid in acquiring an inheritance that becomes his upon the event of his marriage. When a well-meaning aunt decides to put her finger into their matrimonial pie, complications arise that are screamingly funny. But this ingenious youth finally manages to straighten matters out to everyone's satisfaction, and in so doing acquires for himself a wife of his own.

The same picture is featured tonight at the Glendale theater.

An Old Song

By VICTOR REDCLIFFE

(Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union.)

"Lucy," said Mrs. Wharton to her married sister-in-law, "there is something the matter with Silas. Have you noticed?"

"Why do you ask?" inquired her visitor, and her shrewd eyes scanned the face of the first speaker keenly.

"Because he isn't the same as he was before he went to visit the city. He is restless, uneasy, given to long lonely walks, and he's got a new habit of whistling under his breath in a smiling, thoughtful way."

"That isn't a bad sign, Mary, is it?" rallied Mrs. Bartley. "Anything else?"

"Why, yes. After he came back from the city he wrote several letters and mailed them."

"They must cover business of some kind."

"Well, maybe," sighed Mary Wharton, "but it sort of worries me. Then, too, the postman brought several rolls that he never opened before us."

"Perhaps magazines or music," suggested Lucy. "Don't try and imagine a mystery, dear. Brother Silas is a plain, steady-going man and isn't up to any mischief that I know."

The subject was dismissed, but when she left the Wharton home Mrs. Bartley did some thinking. She did not tell her sister-in-law, but she was secretly aware of the fact that her brother had been going every other day to see Miss Jennie Thurston. The latter was a very old maid, a music teacher, prim, sedate, a model of respectability and a stickler for the proprieties. Lucy was a forceful, definite little woman, and she set her lips resolutely as she went to see Miss Thurston on her way home.

"Jennie," she said in her abrupt, clear-headed way, "has Silas been coming here pretty often lately?"

"For an hour twice a week," was the prompt response.

"What for?"

"To learn a tune."

"You don't mean that Silas has been taking music lessons of you!" exclaimed the astonished Lucy.

"On the piano, you mean," smiled Miss Thurston. "Oh, dear, no—to whistle."

"You are puzzling me."

"You needn't be. It's his business, and it's not mine to spread it, but your brother came to me three weeks ago offering to pay me to play a piece he had, or rather several, but different arrangements of a song. He wanted to learn it, he said, but only to whistle it. It was a sort of old-time piece called 'Sally in Our Alley.' He got it pretty fair, paid me for my time, and that's all."

"You mystify me more than ever," murmured Mrs. Bartley perplexedly. "Is Silas getting musical in his old age?"

"Not at all, and perhaps I had better tell you more to clear the situation," said Miss Thurston. "He told me that when in the city a friend took him to a music hall. A famous singer rendered some old-time songs, and among them 'Sally.' You know how we all take a fancy to some special tune and love to hear it over and over again. Well, Silas told me that the first time he met Mary, thirty years ago, it was at a concert where 'Sally' was sung. Somehow he associated this with his good fortune of falling in love with her. Anyhow, it stayed with him as the sweetest trilling music he had ever heard, and it is pretty, too. When he heard it in the city he couldn't keep from liking it more than ever. When he got back he wrote to half a dozen music publishers to get a copy of it. That's all, Lucy."

Lucy hastened to apprize Mary of these facts and the mind of the latter was immensely relieved.

Arthur Wharton the next day told his mother how he had passed a lonely spot in the timber where his father was whistling for dear life, and melodiously, too, and the day following Silas seemed to have decided that he had now mastered his favorite song. Half a dozen times Mary caught the echo of its rendition and was pleased to listen to it, and more than ever because a sort of romantic sentimentalism attached to it.

After that every day the whistling ability of Hiram was tested and not found wanting in fresh ardor and volume, but toward the end of autumn Silas caught a severe cold, had to take to his bed and his musical exercises were naturally hushed.

"Mother," said Arthur one afternoon, "Milly Bland is coming over tonight. You know we are engaged and I haven't told father yet."

"He suspects it already, Arthur."

"Yes, but he is always talking about waiting a year or two before I think of marrying. I want him to see and like Milly. And besides," added Arthur, "I have a little surprise for him that may also bring things about our way."

Clever Arthur Wharton had found a way to gain the attention and interest of his father for his fiancee. Propped in his chair, the old man sat up like one electrified as at the piano Milly Bland played and sang his favorite tune.

He was on his feet a new man the next day. He could not whistle with normal readiness as yet, but his happy face showed that the sweet, mellow strains of "Sally in Our Alley" were ever present in his mind.

"Arthur," he said, "maybe a year is too long to wait to get that delightful song bird here. Make it as soon as you like."

SHOW LOCATION OF WATER

Signs on Painted Desert in the Southwest Guide Travelers to the Precious Liquid.

Travel off the beaten paths in the famous Painted desert of the Southwest would be a dangerous matter were it not for the stone sentinels set up by the Navajo Indians to direct the stranger traveling through that country, where once there was water in plenty, but where now are only the dry beds of rivers.

These sentinels are piles of rocks, as high as a man, located on rises of ground where they may be readily seen. In the body of the monument is placed a projecting rock which is arranged to point the direction to the nearest spring or waterhole. If one follows the direction indicated, although he may have to proceed a considerable distance, the precious water will always be found.

Frequently it is only a very weak seep supplying no more than a few cups in an hour. Or it may be a pool located deep in the recesses of a rocky ledge and collected from the snows of the past winter. Sometimes it is situated in an out-of-the-way place, and then there may be two, or even three smaller monuments erected along the route designated.

Also along the way there may be arrows cut in the rocks or crooked grooves symbolizing the windings of a brook or signs of various kinds which will attract attention. These directions all help to make the way plainer and reduce the chance of the traveler becoming confused.

JOIN A "THANK YOU" CLUB

No Initiation Fee and No Dues, and Membership Is Open to Every Person.

It's great, the "Thank You" club. No initiation, no dues, no long-drawn-out meetings, and no reports. Anyone can make a quorum to do business. No stated meetings nor any stipulated place of meeting. Anybody can start a "Thank You" club. Beats Overall clubs all to pieces! Lasts longer, does more good, and spreads sunshine.

One carries the by-laws around in his head. The password is "Thank You." And that's all there is in the whole book of rules. That's all it means, the "Thank You" club—just a thank you for the little services performed daily as well as the big ones. A thank you is more appreciated by many people than a tip, which, by some, might be considered an insult.

Start a club some morning. Watch your club grow. Good ideas spread. Try the club for one day. It may make you a life member. And the "thank you" exchanges will increase and radiate like ripples from a stone thrown into the millpond.

There's a big field in this world for "Thank You" clubs. Their members take the edge off rough places. If "Thank You" is the password, the genuine smile of service is the open reward for its application.—Haverhill Gazette.

Fake "Josses" for Travelers.

Canton and Amoy supply travelers and curio dealers with quantities of hideous idols known in the trade as "josses." They are fakes pure and simple, having no relation to any oriental religion. Ingenious designers have produced a great variety of hobgoblins—such, for example, as the "hunger god," with the face of a tiger and ferocious fangs.

Most of them are of clay, turned out from wooden or metal molds, dipped in molten glass and allowed to cool. A fairly expert Chinese workman can make 100 in a day at a cost of 3 cents apiece. The European or American tourist pays $5.

Real josses may be worth a lot of money, especially if carved out of jade. This is a material greatly prized in the orient, and a jade idol 15 inches high, and as many centuries old, has been known to sell for $10,000 in Canton.

White and Red Roses Blended.

The most interesting combination of roses is that of the union of the white rose of York with the red rose of Lancaster after the long struggle between those two factions when the red rose might have represented the blood that was shed and the other one the condition of the people bled white by the wars. To cement the peace Henry of Lancaster wedded pretty Elizabeth of York and a clever gardener of old England blended the two roses and made a new one, striped red and white. We have it in this country where it is still called the York and Lancaster, though not every beholder realizes the story held in its fragrant petals.

The Cockade.

The cockade, an ornament or knot of ribbon or rosette of leather, was originally worn as a military or naval decoration or as the badge of a political party. Cockades made of ribbons of the national colors were worn by soldiers of the national wars of the eighteenth century. In England after the expulsion of the Stuart dynasty the white cockade became the badge of the adherents of the exiled house in opposition to the orange of Nassau and the black of Hanover. From the hats of the military it passed to those of the civil servants of the crown. Then as headgear changed the use of the distinction was confined to servants. The black cockade on the hats of officers' servants was introduced by George I.

MISS EVARTS IS HOSTESS AT PARTY

The Evarts home at 163 South Central avenue was the scene of a delightfully informal party on Tuesday evening when their daughter, Miss Maybelle, acted as hostess to members of the Girls' Friendly club and their escorts. The rooms were beautified with baskets of lovely roses in shades of pink American beauties and white, with fern fronds.

Games, music and clever conundrums sped the hours along. Prize winners for the games included K. D. Erb, W. M. Newton and Harry Spink.

The hostess was assisted by her mother and two associate members, Mrs. Ernest H. Parker, who is branch secretary of the organization, and Harriet Hopkins.

Bidden guests included the Misses Eileen Sullivan, Gertrude Champlain, Louise Ayala, Sue Thomas, Corinne Orff, Dorothy Follette, Lorna Galer, Martha Barrett, Dorothy Hunt, Connie Hutchinson, Beatrice Volker and the Messrs. Robert Sullivan, Francis Gordon, W. M. Newton, Albert Sullivan, Kenneth Jackson, K. D. Erb, Walter Rogers, Clyde Cotiaux and Harry Spink.

The Girls' Friendly will not hold another meeting until May 3, for the Glendale branch on Tuesday next is going to Los Angeles, attending a play given by members of the procathedral girls.

PIDGEON CRUISES TO THE MARQUESAS

Harry Pidgeon, well known in Glendale and Burbank, is stocking up his 36-foot sail boat down at San Pedro preparatory to faring forth on a cruise to the Marquesas islands.

Mr. Pidgeon is a world traveler who prefers the unfrequented byways of the world for his observation and study. He is a photographer of God's out-of-doors and also a writer of no mean ability. He has made several tours of exploration in Alaska, one of them for Alaskan animals for the Portland fair, of whose Yukon, Alaska exhibit he was manager.

Last year he made a trip in this sailboat, which he built himself, to the Hawaiian islands. The trip over took 36 days; the homeward trip was made in 45 days. The trip to the Marquesas islands will probably take all summer. It is probable that Mr. Pidgeon will write a description of the islands and their people.

"MAMMA'S AFFAIR" AT PALACE GRAND

A striking instance of a producer's zeal to give a screen production not only elaborateness of scope, but players in the leading roles, who were long identified with the stage career of the piece is demonstrated by Joseph M. Schenck in Constance Talmadge's starring vehicle, "Mamma's Affair," now on the screen at the Palace Grand theater.

This piece, which has been adapted for the screen by Anita Loos and John Emerson, from Rachel Barton Butler's well-known stage production of the same name, was directed by Victor Fleming. When choosing his players, Mr. Fleming persuaded Effie Shannon, Katherine Kaelred and George Le Guere, who appeared in the stage version, to journey to New York in order to be seen in their original roles in the screen production. Kenneth Harlan is Constance's leading man.

WHERE TICKETS FOR PLAY ARE BEING SOLD

Tickets for the evening of plays to be given tomorrow evening by the dramatic section of the Tuesday Afternoon Club at the Palace Grand theater may be secured at Botts bookstore the chamber of commerce, Roberts & Echols drug store and the Palace Grand theater.

FINE PROGRAM OF LITERARY SECTION

Misses Vermilye and Brown Review and Discuss Current Events of World

Two ladies entertained members of the Tuesday Afternoon literary section at the home of the curator, Mrs. A. M. Williams, Tuesday, at one of the largest and most interesting sessions it has held this year.

Miss E. B. Vermilye of New York, who was the principal speaker, took as her theme, "World Events" and presented a wonderful survey of conditions all over the globe, under five divisions, viz., the far east, the near east, the African continent, our own continent and Europe, though she touched but lightly on America because of having spoken along that line two weeks before. She referred to the theory that the Garden of Eden far from being in the Orient, was really at the north pole, the aurora borealis being the flaming sword mentioned in Scriptures. She dwelt on the crowded conditions in Japan, which force its people to work every inch of soil and referred to China as the sleeping beast whose worship of ancestors has retarded its development and even now is preventing the opening up of its resources because of the bones that might be disturbed. It is the country that Japan is determined to exploit but a country less dangerous to the United States she thinks than the Flowery Kingdom, because it has not the same ambition to dominate, and has always been friendly to us. Said she:

"The real reason why we cannot have Japanese emigrants coming here is because they are not assimilable and neither are the Orientals. They cannot be Americanized and we can not safely take people in that cannot be assimilated. Japan is intensely patriotic and her people always remain Japanese to the third and fourth generation, no matter how far from home. They have no loyalty to any country but Japan. California is right in her attitude, but wrong in her reasons."

She paid a high tribute to the work of England in India and other colonial possessions and merely touched on Ireland, declaring that England could not give freedom to a country so near that had been ready to traffic with her enemies. Italy and Belgium she declares are in better condition than France.

Miss Jessie Brown, who was the second speaker, who has done Americanization work among the Mexicans both in Mexico and along the border told of her experiences. She told of their customs and their political situation and of her confidence in the possibility of uplift work among them and a more friendly understanding between Mexicans and Americans than now obtains.

MOVING PICTURES IN SOUTH GLENDALE

Residents of the southern part of Glendale who have shown interest in acquiring a moving picture machine for the benefit of the children of that section will be interested to know that it is likely that the proceeds of the entertainment planned for next Tuesday evening will be sufficient to finish paying for the machine.

This entertainment will be given in the hall over the branch library, 140 South Brand boulevard. It will consist of a motion picture show and several vaudeville numbers. The effort to buy this machine has been sponsored by the Thursday Club. When paid for it will be turned over to Cerritos avenue school, although it is to be devoted to the instruction and entertainment of not only the children of that school, but of the entire southern section of the city.

MUHLEMAN PLACE SOLD

The old Muhleman place at 111 West Maple, has been traded by Mr. Patterson, the owner, to Wesley Kuhnle of 522 East Cypress, taking in the beautiful new residence of the latter, built about a year ago. Mr. Kuhnle will establish his enlarged music school in the new location. C. H. Henry, the well-known real estate agent, negotiated the transfer. The exchange price was in the neighborhood of $13,000.

"'HELLO, CENTRAL,' give me the Palace Grand. Palace Grand? Will you hold 'FOURTEEN' tickets to 'NEIGHBORS'? What? Tickets are going so fast you can't hold them? I'll come right down. I must have them as I can't afford to miss the fun."—Advertisement.

SENATOR JOHNSON ISSUES WARNING

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 20.—With senators and representatives from the far western states for an audience, Senator Hiram Johnson of California today warned that these states "must move forward together" on the Japanese question with a united front "in the days which are ahead." The gathering was assembled in the house caucus room to hear V. S. McClatchy of Sacramento, representing the Japanese Exclusion league of California.

ITALIAN HELD AS EXPLOSION SUSPECT

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK, April 20.—Police and United States secret service heads here were waiting eagerly early this morning for the arrival from Scranton, Pa., of a government agent with the photograph and Bertillon measurements of an Italian arrested in that city in connection with the great Wall street explosion of September 15, last, which cost 35 lives, wounded more than 100 persons and turned the famous corner "Broad and Wall" into a heap of wreckage.

WOULD OPEN PACIFIC ISLANDS TO SETTLERS

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON, April 20.—A compromise by which Pacific islands south of the equator, mandated to Great Britain, would be thrown open to Japanese immigration and commercial enterprise in return for the internationalization of Yap, was suggested today in official circles as likely a solution to be proposed by Japan when the question of mandates is again taken up by the allied supreme council.

VATICAN WILL NOT ACT AS MEDIATOR

(By International News Service)

ROME, April 20.—In spite of emphatic denials that the Holy See has been requested by Germany to act as her intermediary in the reparations controversy the International News Service is reliably informed that the Berlin government did ask the intervention of Pope Benedict. The holy father, however, refused because he did not wish to give offense to the allies, particularly France by making himself the spokesman for Germany.

The vatican's semi-official mouthpiece, the Corriere d'Italia, again denied today that any step has been taken by the vatican toward mediation in Germany's behalf.

REDONDO BEACH HAS SPECTACULAR FIRE

(By International News Service)

REDONDO BEACH, April 20.—Heralded by a series of explosions which awakened the entire city and sent inhabitants panic stricken to the streets early today in the belief that they were experiencing an earthquake, a spectacular fire destroyed the Pacific Electric shops here with an estimated loss of $225,000. It was stated that $150,000 insurance was carried by the Pacific Electric Company. The origin of the fire had not been determined early this afternoon. Beside the car shops a number of cars of the company's rolling stock were consumed in the blaze. This included eight passenger coaches valued at $10,500 each.
